2. Data processing with app downloads

Please note that when you download app data, personal data is sent to the operator of the app store from which you download the app. When downloading an app, required information is relayed to the app store, in particular user name, e-mail address, customer number at the app store, and the individual device identification. We have no control over this data processing. The party responsible for this is the operator of the respective app store. You will find more detailed information regarding data processing in the data protection statements of each app store operator.

3. Data processing when using the mobile app

The mobile app is loaded onto your mobile device and can be used without access to the internet.

With some apps, in order to use certain functions of the app you must grant the app authorisations for access to the corresponding functions of your terminal, for example access to the storage system in order to store photos or videos on your mobile device, if the app provides for this possibility. If an app enables data storage this only happens locally.

When using the apps that we offer, no personal data is collected.
